Dear colleagues,
as is well known, functional pathologies of the digestive system, i.e. all those morbid conditions in which the normal digestive functions are altered without any immediately identifiable organic cause, are increasingly observed in our daily clinical practice. These are functional alterations that can afflict every part of the digestive system, particularly the oesophageal-gastric joint and the rectum-anal joint, which often have a very long course and symptoms that greatly affect the quality of life of the patients. A very important role in the treatment of these pathologies, such as gastroesophageal reflux disease (mRGE), obstructed defecation syndrome (SOD), anal incontinence (IA), but also mRGE in the patient candidate for bariatric surgery, is today increasingly more entrusted to surgery, identifying indications and limits are still the subject of animated debate among specialists. Participation in this event, organized exclusively in Round Tables between recognized opinion leaders, aims at an up-to-date of high scientific and educational value on the most recent epidemiological, diagnostic and therapeutic acquisitions relating to functional digestive pathologies of surgical interest. In addition, the realization of two pre-congress courses represents a further reason of interest for those who wish to implement their knowledge in specialized digestive functional diagnostics.
